

CSSMM Study Receives Widespread News Coverage

CSSMM's recent research on Arabic and Farsi language speakers who were fired for being gay received a great deal of media coverage, with the first story being published on January 13, 2005. Below, we've provided links to items of special import.

Key Media Coverage:

Canning Gay Linguists: Stonewalled

January 24, 2005, The New Republic

Lost In Translation

January 23, 2005, Sarasota Herald-Tribune

Editorial: The Price of Homophobia

January 20, 2005, New York Times

Military's Self-Inflicted Wound

January 19, 2005, Los Angeles Times

Don't Ask, Don't Think

January 18, 2005, Washington Post

UCSB Researchers Keep Military Gays in Spotlight

January 15, 2005, Santa Barbara News Press

Twenty-Six Gay Linguists Discharged from Military Between 1998 and 2004

January 14, 2005, The Advocate

Military Has Discharged 26 Gay Linguists

January 14, 2005, Associated Press

Gay Linguists Dismissed from Military

January 14, 2004, New York Times

This Opinion Just In... Don't Ask, Don't Tell, Don't Translate Terrorist Secrets

January 13, 2005, Scripps Howard News Service

Military Discharged 26 Mideast Linguists

January 13, 2005, United Press International